ENGINEERING STATEMENT
PREPARED ON BEHALF OF WEIGEL BROADCASTING COMPANY

This Engineering Statement has been prepared on behalf of Weigel Broadcasting Company, licensee of both full service and LPTV stations in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. The Statement provides comments regarding the Sixth Further Notice of Proposed Rule Making, in The Matter of Advanced Television Systems and Their Impact upon the Existing Television Broadcast Service, MM Docket No. 87-268. The Sixth Further Notice was released on August 14, 1996, with comments due by November 22, 1996.

In order to have an orderly and efficient transition from NTSC to DTV, and to preserve current service to all viewers, Weigel suggests the following:

1. Maintain the entire television spectrum, at least for the present, so as to provide for field testing and establishment of planning factors which will result in the best possible off-the-air DTV television system.
2. Protect existing service of both full service, LPTV and translator stations until a method is devised which will accommodate all current television service providers.

3. Establish standards for LPTV stations which will insure their future operation, not on a secondary basis, but with primary protection.

TELEVISION SERVICE

Current television service by full service, translators and low power television stations provides a myriad of programming to the public. LPTV stations especially, provide service to ethnic and minority groups which is often ignored by full service stations. The American system of free off-the-air television service should be maintained as the ultimate goal of any proposed changes in the television service.

SPECTRUM

In the Sixth Further Notice, it is proposed to immediately eliminate channels 60 through 69 and ultimately to return channels 2 through 6 and channels 52 through 59 for other usage. Because of operation of DTV stations will be in the current television band, all spectrum should be retained until proper planning factors have been established. It is estimated that over the course of two or three years of field testing that sufficient information can be accumulated so as to accurately assign planning factors to an allocation scheme. Planning factors form the basis for any allocation of channels and they should be properly established before leaping into a monumental change in television broadcasting.

With proper planning, it should be possible to accommodate another temporary channel for DTV usage for each full service station, and with some minor relaxation of interference rules, accommodate LPTV stations as well. Once a proper plan has been devised, which satisfies the needs of both full service and LPTV stations, spectrum should then be available for other uses. And, once the transition from NTSC to DTV is complete, the television band can be "repacked", freeing substantial spectrum for other usages. Time needed for planning an excellent system is a small price to pay for having the best possible free off-the-air television system.

POWER

The effective radiated power (ERP) proposed for many DTV stations in the Sixth Further Notice is unrealistic as it is practically impossible to achieve the necessary transmitter power. For example, to achieve an ERP of 3000 kilowatts, requires a transmitter having an output power of approximately 600 kilowatts, roughly three times more than any current UHF transmitters. Electricity to power such a transmitter would be prohibitively expensive. Additionally, an antenna has not been devised which can handle the current and voltages involved with such power.

An allocation table which proposes stations with extremely high power necessarily causes interference to a much greater extent than would a lower powered station. Such high power also removes the possibility of LPTV usage of channels due to the required protection to these super facilities. If a more realistic approach to ERP was taken by the Commission, there is a greater chance that spectrum for LPTV stations and translators would be available.

PROTECTION OF LPTV STATIONS

Just as full service television stations are protected from interference by other stations, LPTV stations should be allowed to be licensed on a primary basis. For example, a LPTV station which achieves an ERP of 500 kilowatts and antenna height above average terrain of 500 feet (or equivalent), should be protected just as a full service station. Such facilities would likely be adequate even in a substantial market, to provide service to the target audience. With proper and reasonable planning factors, all stations should be accommodated.

DTV CHANNEL FOR LPTV

There is every reason to believe that LPTV stations will also transmit DTV ultimately. It is also possible that during the transition from NTSC to DTV that insufficient spectrum will be available to provide for a second channel for LPTV; however, after the transition, there should be sufficient spectrum to accommodate LPTV stations, which should be part of the planning process.
